Why should I make a Will?

You may have put off making a Will because it involves thinking about what happens when you're no longer here. This is understandable but it also leaves the door open for your loved ones to miss out and for the Government to benefit from your property and your possessions.

Making a Will gives you peace of mind that your property, possessions and money will go to the people and the organisations you care about. No-one can control when the inevitable will happen but you can maintain control of what happens when it does.

Won't everything go to my next of kin if I don't have a Will?

This is a common misconception. Sometimes this will happen but not always. If you don't have a Will, the law dictates who gets what. For example, if you are not married to your partner regardless of how long you have lived together, your partner would receive nothing. If you have no living relatives, everything you own goes to the Government.

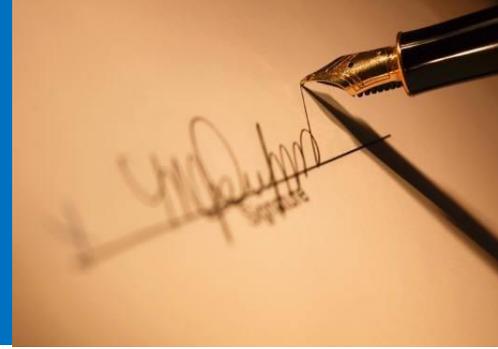

Why Now?

Enoch Evans LLP Solicitors are supporting The Cancer Support Centre by offering their time to prepare a standard Will for our patients, staff and supporters completely free of charge in exchange for a donation which will help us give extra support to patients and their families.

The suggested donation is £100 if you are a single person or £150 if you and your partner make Wills at the same time. This is a really good saving on the usual charges and 100% of your donation will go to supporting The Cancer Support Centre. If your Will is not standard, for example if you need Inheritance Tax advice or if you need to set up Trusts, Enoch Evans LLP will explain and agree any extra charges with you in advance.

You will receive exactly the same service as you would if you were paying the usual cost of a Will, as well as the benefits that Enoch Evans LLP clients receive. Please see next page for further information.

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Why should I make a Will?

It's the only way to be certain that your money, property and possessions will go to the people and organisations you care about.

Everyone should have a Will but it is particularly important if:

- You have a partner who you are not married to – the law says that they are entitled to nothing if you don't have a will that leaves something to them
- You are separated – your spouse may benefit from your property, money or belongings if you don't have a Will to exclude them
- You want to leave gifts to charity or to friends – the law won't allow this if you don't have a Will.

No-one has control over when the inevitable will happen but making a Will gives you the ability to control what happens when it does.

2. When do I need to make a Will?

If you don't have a Will, the simple answer is now. You are never too young or too old to make a Will and have the peace of mind that having a Will gives to you and your loved ones.

3. What is a standard Will and is it right for me?

A standard Will is ideal for you if you are leaving your property and possessions to family members, friends or if you plan to leave gifts to charity. If you have children who are under 18, it also includes appointing guardians for them. A standard Will would not include Inheritance Tax planning or the setting up Trusts for anyone other than children under the age of 18.

4. What will it cost me?

You will be given an envelope in which to place your donation to The Cancer Support Centre. The suggested donation is £100 if you are a single person or £150 if you are a couple making a Will at the same time. This is less than half the cost of making a Will if your solicitor charged you for it. If your solicitor thinks you may need Inheritance Tax advice or if you need to set up Trusts, the cost of doing this will be discussed with you in advance.

If you sign the Gift Aid declaration on the envelope, we can also claim back a further 25% from HMRC.

Legacies & Wills

A guide to making a Will and leaving a legacy to charity

When you have thought about your loved ones in your Will, you may wish to donate to a charity. This guide explains how you can leave a bequest or legacy to The Cancer Support Centre

Why The Cancer Support Centre needs your legacy

The Centre does not receive any funding from the NHS or government and consequently has to raise all funds from donations and fundraising events, in order to provide the support they do for those affected by cancer – those with a diagnosis and their families.

For 2019 that amounts to an average of £3,200 per week which is quite a task !

'Without the Centre's support, I don't think my mom would be here today.'

Our experience in supporting clients has shown that being told you have cancer can be devastating and can cause fear, anxiety and vulnerability; and conventional treatment regimes put the body under a great deal of stress which can be very debilitating physically and emotionally.

We provide a safe and welcoming place where clients can explore their concerns and learn techniques that can help alleviate some of the effects of hospital treatment.

Your gift to us will help us to continue offering this support and comfort to our clients, enabling them to feel the best they possibly can whilst on their journey.

future and can make an enormous difference to us.

There are a number of ways you can leave a legacy to charity

Specific Cash Gifts

You can leave a fixed amount of money to charity. It is simple and straightforward. If you would like to leave a cash gift to help our work, please ask your solicitor to include it in your Will.

Specific Legacy

A specific legacy enables you to leave something of value to The Cancer Support Centre, which can be used by the charity appropriately. These can be items of jewellery, property, shares or furniture. It must be clearly identified in your Will.

Residuary Legacy

A residuary legacy is when you leave the balance of your estate to The Cancer Support Centre after everything else is taken care of e.g. debts, liabilities and tax.

You can specify what you want the legacy spent on eg. Providing 1:1 therapies, workshops, talks or groups; or place it in our general fund which is governed by the Trustees. Whatever you choose, we will ensure that your gift is used in accordance with your wishes.

Please note: We are not able to advise further on legal matters relating to the leaving of a legacy as such other advice should come from an independent solicitor or other professional adviser.
